Col. L. N. TRAMMELL, of Whitfield county, defining his views upon the convention, says he is in favor of an elective judiciary. We are not professional prophets, but we have no hesitation in saying that an elective judiciary is an abomination. What the state needs is judges who will hold their position for life or during good behavior.

The citizens of Atlanta and the voters of Fulton county ought by all means to vote for a convention. They voted to reject the constitution of 1868, and they ought to vote to have that instrument rejected.

Absurd Story about His Remains.
The True Story.

Young Baltimore女士

A number of periodicals are going the rounds of the press as to the disappearance of the remains of J. Wilkes Booth. The story is by Captain Oliver P. Leslie, of Pittsburgh, who states that the body was sunk in a lake seven miles below Alexandria, Virginia. The inveritable proofs are as follows: The remains were ordered to be delivered to the friends of Booth by President Andrew Johnson. John H. Weaver, the undertaker of this city, was sent to Washington by his family to bring them here for interment. A casket was taken up from the arsenal building, and delivered to him. It was brought by him to Baltimore, and was examined by him. The report of the coroner at his room on west Fayette street, near Holiday. They found it in a skeleton, wrapped in an old army blanket. When the blanket was taken off, the skeleton was covered with a powder having the appearance of soot, and was being burned by the fire. The first report was, just as soapstone will do. On the right foot was an army shoe, cut at the top its entire length, as if to accommodate a swollen foot. On the other was a large cavalry boot. The reporter of the Gazette examined the bones in the above case, and some time ago concluded that the remains were those of Booth. The remains made a permanent examination, and at last discovered the leg was fractured clean through, just above the ankle. The fracture was clearly marked and the portion below the fracture being left out of the box, the ends of the bone were joined together. There was no doubt as to the fact that Booth, in leaping from the box, had fractured his right leg, and not sprained it. Still the identity of the remains were not satisfactorily established, especially as there was no portion of the spinal vertebrae missing, and no mark of his brother's hand. After thinking a while with the brood, and all that he could remember was that his brother had his thumb plucked with a peculiar manner. He described the location of the tooth, and drew with a pencil the shape of the plug, which was of unusual size. The teeth were taken out, and the tooth was found to be plugged just as described by his brother, and forever settling, at rest any question as to the identity of the remains. The remains were buried in Greenmount cemetery, and in the same lot with his grandfather, father and other children of the family.

GARLANDING THE GRAVES

A LETTER FROM JUSTICE JACK
SON OF THE SUPREME COURT.

In Which he Shows That Governor
Smith was Misinformed as to Certain Things—His Version of the Advice Given Governor Colquitt.

ATLANTA, May 30, 1877.

Editors Constitution—I read this morning on a sick bed a letter in your paper from Gov. Smith to Gov. Colquitt, advertising that the latter's course as executive of the state is injurious to the health of Washington and Alston, in which letter the following statement appears:

"First. 'Before you made your decision you were urged by friends, one of whom occupies a high judicial position in the state, to call upon me to furnish you with a special train to Knoxville in order to make the road to that point, 112 miles, in three hours.'

The postmaster general is going along with them and they expect to reach Washington Sunday or Monday night.

Yesterday afternoon, at the cemetery, and after the regular exercises were concluded, Col. Wheeler introduced Postmaster General Key to the immense audience, and he addressed them as follows:

"First. 'I cannot make you a speech this evening. The most I can say is simply to acknowledge the call without making any speech. I am happy, indeed, to meet here so many of those friends whom I have known so long, and so many—so many men of both sumes, of all political opinions, and of all races, who have known and whom I shall ever love. [Applause.]'

This is an occasion not of great solemnity, but of great congratulation also. A little more than twenty years ago and those mountains that look down upon us echoed the sound of hostile gun and the shock of foes who met in deadly conflict. Was felt over these plains and mountains the same sense of alarm and patriotic blood. To day those who met in battle arms, and those who met in the field of honor, those who met in hostile array, are here linked hand in hand and heart to heart, doing honor to those who fell in the defense of their country. [Applause.]

Abu here am I, who was engaged upon the field of battle, and I am still here, having the honor of addressing you and upon this occasion to follow in the speaking one who has met with such patriotic blood. To day those who met in both armies who then met in hostile array, are here linked hand in hand and heart to heart, doing honor to those who fell in the defense of their country. [Applause.]

Those who met in the field of honor, and who have been here since to have been called to the bar, have now become great and mighty men, and are still here to do their duty to their country. [Applause.]

Those who were much obliged to Col. W. C. Morris of the State road for his manifold courtesies and by his aid enjoyed a agreeable trip.

Atmosphere

There are many grounds for suspicion and on this final arrival he has been compelled to make a grand affidavit to sustain his claim.

Our dispatches of this morning may give us the result, as it was thought that the case would be given to the jury by Thursday night; but six lawyers intended to speak, and as the jury is partly composed of colored men, the verdict may be longer delayed.Eleven persons were indicted, and the real charge against them is, that they were engaged in a conspiracy to interfere with the political rights of a particular colored man named David Bush, who was killed on Monday, September 18, 1876. There is not, says the Charleston News and Courier, one scintilla of evidence to support such a charge. The testimony for the defense established the following points:First—That the negroes began the firing upon the whites without provocation; that they fired with effect, that the whites, not expecting the attack, were driven back with several wounded.Second—That it was afterward agreed that the difficulty should be settled, and that both parties should retire; that the whites did retire, and that subsequently some of the very party of white men who were present at this agreement while returning to their homes through a swamp were ambushed and fired by the negroes without any warning whatever.Third—The attempt on the part of the prosecution to prove aggression on the part of the whites has been completely overthrown, it having been clearly shown by the witnesses on both sides that in the conference between the United States army officers the desire of the whites was only to preserve the peace, and upon the word of Captain Lloyd, who said he would use all his power to quiet the blacks, the whites retired and disbanded.Mr. Corbin and his associates did not expect at any time to secure a verdict of guilty; but they plan clearly was to prevent an acquittal by appealing to the passions of the colored jurors. A mis-trial may be expected.It would be well for the people to remain the candidates for the convention that some protection is needed against the power of the legislature to increase the per diem and mileage of its own members. In South Carolina, a few days since, the senate in its special session voted to pay each member eleven dollars a day.We learn that Elder T. M. Harris, state evangelist of Georgia for the Christian church, will deliver a series of sermons in Charleston, S. C., beginning to-day. Elder Harris is one of the most eloquent pulpit orators in the country, and we doubt not that his mission to Charleston will be productive of much good.The New York Sun is endeavoring to have the government advertising based on circulation. We believe the other course in its last analysis is favoritism and corruption.SPENCER, the carpet-bag senator and ruler from Alabama, is going to Wyoming. What has Wyoming done that she should be thus inflicted?It is understood that a company of northern capitalists will begin the erection of large cotton mill in Columbia next fall.The able editors of the Augusta Chronicle (one of the shrewdest of our exchanges), continue to allude to the "Constitution as the Atlanta Paper." This is a deserved compliment.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION / ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1877.

ROUNDABOUT IN GEORGIA.

The drugists of Columbus have formed themselves into an association for their mutual protection. This is probably a good move, but wouldn't it be well for sick people to protect themselves against the druggists?

Nothing pleases Colonel Pleasant Stovall better than to receive the permission of Colonel Gregg Wright to allude to THE CONSTITUTION in one of his imitable paragraphs as "the Atlanta paper." And whenever he accomplishes this feat he takes a half holiday. Long may the colonel live and prosper!

Richardson, the well known city editor of the Savannah News, has given himself over to the collection of statistics.

A Savannah man jumped into the river the other day to prevent a soft-shell crab from drowning. Galloping could go no further than this.

Martin Wyly, of Savannah, has gone to New York. In the long years that are to come he will regret that he didn't come to Atlanta.

There is a good deal of difference between the people of this patriotic country. When a Georgia captures a wild cat he skins him. When a Texan catches one he eats him.

The drouth is damaging the crops in Franklin county to a considerable extent.

Since the present editor of the Newman Herald has taken charge of the paper, one hundred new names have been placed upon the subscription list.

Mr. William V. P. Hodgson, of Athens, is dead.

Hog cholera is prevalent in Habersham county.

Dade county has six successful schools in operation.

A son of Charles Sutton, of Dade county, was accidentally burned to death recently.

The candidate for sheriff in Dade county is re-contesting the election in Dade county.

Hiram Castleberry, of Dade county, was bitten recently by a rattlesnake, but not fatally.

Newman wants a military company and a brass band. She ought to have them.

Another colored murder has been committed in Jasper county.

Mr. Lucius B. Newton, of Jasper county, is dead.

Mr. John Gammell, of Savannah, a member of the firm of Hunter & Gammell, and well known merchant of Savannah, is dead.

Douglasville now has a guard-house.

LaGrange Reporter: Mr. James D. Hardy, a well known farmer of this county, is making an experiment this year on an acre of corn. Moved the seed by the success of Mr. Hardaway, of Thomasville, who had made a fortune on salt irrigation, he has made a series of acts for carrying on said institution. The object of said institution is to provide a school for the poor, to be a model for the rich, and to be a school for the poor. Said corporation has a capital stock and no means except such as may be derived from the sale of salt and me a common sea, buy and sell property, and all other personal property of said corporation. Said corporation is the owner of said railroad equipment and property which will be sold for bonds of this State or the first mortgage bonds of said company endorsed by the authority of the act approved October 22, 1870, will be sold for bonds of said company.

LaGrange, April 30, 1877.
ROBERT T. FOULHOG, Agent for the State.

Important Facts regarding Life Insurance Companies, and of Great Interest to Insurers.

One only of our States, by law, disallows immediate forfeiture of policies issued by life insurance companies until the receiver accumulation is exhausted. Thus, while failure to pay premiums immediately results in forfeiture of the policy, the receiver accumulation is exhausted. The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, under operation of the Equitable Non-Forfeiture Law of Massachusetts, continues them in force according to the following:

EX-MLPS.

Ordinary Life Policy, Age 30—One annual cash payment will continue the policy in force two years and three days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

Annual Cash Payments will continue the same policy for ten years and fifty-six days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

Pen-Payment Life Policy, Age 30—One annual cash payment will continue the policy in force four years and fifty-one days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

Five Annual Cash Payments will continue the same policy for four years and one hundred and thirty-four days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

Pen-Payment Life Policy, Age 30—One annual cash payment will continue the policy in force four years and fifty-one days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

We understand that Generals' Guards will be sent to the city to-night and fifty-six days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

The election for battalions will be held on the same place on next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock for the adoption of by-laws and arranging for election of officers.

Did you ever see a live Indian painted, in the flesh?—said Mr. Clark Howell, as he prepared a miniature with the master of fact regularity of an automaton. Yes, I told her yesterday.

"How did she take it?" we asked. "Oh she was very glad. She couldn't hardly believe it at first. She was very much affected. She could hardly speak. She said—she—she—ah—ow—ow—a—she—and here the honest great man, with his honest eyes, over the plain boyish face pinched it and announced, as if it was his bitter enemy, and he was crowding a life's revenge into five minutes. That is all right, brave old man, with a heart of gold!" we thought, "we appreciate your suffocation."

It was twelve o'clock in the day before we could get off to the convict camp, which lay a mile beyond. We reached this spot in due time, however, and found the sons and daughters of sin lying out under the trees, idly shaking their shackles and taking their noon rest.

In charge of Mr. Germany, who was in command of the camp, we presented the order of Judge Pittman for the body of Sallie, convicted.

He called the girl, who came out from the midst of a clump of convicts, that had gathered to witness the unusual invasion of their camp.

He said—Mr. Germany, I am sorry.

"Sallie, these people have brought your pardon, and you are free to go with them. Go, now and behave yourself and be a good girl."

We looked at the child curiously as these words were spoken, wondering whether, beneath that horrid assemblage of filth and squalor, any decent soul could exist. We had not observed any suffering and the contact of sin had destroyed all sentiment or emotion; whether the girl's soul itself could make its way through that miserable crust that lay above it. Our questions were answered almost before they took shape. The poor convicts lips trembled, then clenched, and then broke down and a tear followed in her earnest eyes and rolled to the ground.

We turned quickly away and took a critical view of the western sky. Various notes were conspicuously bawd, and handkerchiefs were to many faces. Mr. Howell did not hesitate in a moment of tremendous exertion. He hurried around frantically and immediately to draw his revolver. The little bunch of men, playing across the face of this poor girl convict, had set a whole expedition in motion.

Judge Bradley left the city for Mobile yesterday afternoon.

Mr. J. H. Hollingsworth died of apoplexy at home.

"How did she take it?" we asked. "Oh she was very glad. She couldn't hardly believe it at first. She was very much affected. She could hardly speak. She said—she—she—ah—ow—ow—a—she—and here the honest great man, with his honest eyes, over the plain boyish face pinched it and announced, as if it was his bitter enemy, and he was crowding a life's revenge into five minutes. That is all right, brave old man, with a heart of gold!" we thought, "we appreciate your suffocation."

It was twelve o'clock in the day before we could get off to the convict camp, which lay a mile beyond. We reached this spot in due time, however, and found the sons and daughters of sin lying out under the trees, idly shaking their shackles and taking their noon rest.

In charge of Mr. Germany, who was in command of the camp, we presented the order of Judge Pittman for the body of Sallie, convicted.

He called the girl, who came out from the midst of a clump of convicts, that had gathered to witness the unusual invasion of their camp.

He said—Mr. Germany, I am sorry.

"Sallie, these people have brought your pardon, and you are free to go with them. Go, now and behave yourself and be a good girl."

We turned quickly away and took a critical view of the western sky. Various notes were conspicuously bawd, and handkerchiefs were to many faces. Mr. Howell did not hesitate in a moment of tremendous exertion. He hurried around frantically and immediately to draw his revolver. The little bunch of men, playing across the face of this poor girl convict, had set a whole expedition in motion.

Judge Bradley left the city for Mobile yesterday afternoon.

Mr. J. H. Hollingsworth died of apoplexy at home.

We understand that Generals' Guards will be sent to the city to-night and fifty-six days for its full amount, less premiums due and unpaid.

The election for battalions will be held on the same place on next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock for the adoption of by-laws and arranging for election of officers.

Did you ever see a live Indian painted, in the flesh?—said Mr. Clark Howell, as he prepared a miniature with the master of fact regularity of an automaton. Yes, I told her yesterday.
